New Community Programs committee for EGCMA

The newly formed Community Programs Committee for the East Gippsland Catchment Management Authority (EGCMA) got down to business last week.

The committee reviews and recommends proposals to the EGCMA for community projects funded from various government sources.

Four new community members were chosen from those who nominated: Maria Cardoso, Andrew Brown, Peter Johnstone and Deb Foskey. They join Matt Holland, representing Parks Victoria, and Steve Henry, representing the Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning. Andrew Murray represented DELWP in the first meeting.

EGCMA CEO Graeme Dear was pleased with the response to a call for nominations, "We have appointed members who individually bring a range of experience and skills, and are spread throughout East Gippsland," he said.

The committee will meet whenever required to assist the EGCMA to prioritise community project funding.
